Request for Forbearance

Private Loans – Internship/Residency, In-School, or Fellowship

Note: Not all Wells Fargo private education loans are eligible for a forbearance. Please contact a Wells Fargo loan specialist to verify eligibility.

A forbearance allows you to temporarily cease making payments on your account; however, you remain responsible for the interest accruing on your loan(s). You may pay interest as it accrues, or have it added to your principal balance. Amounts paid during the forbearance period will be credited toward your accrued unpaid interest, principal due, and, if applicable, outstanding fees. Any remaining amounts will be applied to unpaid principal. When your forbearance expires, any unpaid interest is added to the principal balance of your loan(s).

Please carefully read the entire Request for Forbearance form before you begin completing it. You must include all the information in Sections 1 and 4, and have Section 2 or 3 completed by the appropriate official before you return this form to our office. Remember, you must continue making monthly payments until you have been notified that the forbearance is approved. Please initial any changes you make.
